Marvelous Performance

FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

Distance of Hundred and Thirty-Seven Miles Covered in Two Hours and Thirty-Two Minutes at Speed of Over Fifty-Four Miles an Hour, Breaking All Records—Wonderful Control of Machine

New York, May 31.—Glenn H. Curtiss flew from Albany to New York city in an aeroplane, winning the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World.

He covered the distance of 137 miles in two hours and thirty-two minutes, and came to earth as easily, and as lightly as a pigeon.

His average speed for the distance—54.06 miles an hour—surpasses any record ever made by an aeroplane in long distance flight, and in its entirety his feat perhaps eclipses anything man has attempted in an heavier-than-air machine.

Albany was quitted at 7:03 a. m. under weather conditions as near perfect as the most fastidious aviator could demand. One hour and twenty-three minutes later he had reached Poughkeepsie, where there was an hour's intermission. Resuming his flight at 9:26, he sped southward and landed within the boundary of Manhattan Island at 10:35.

Only 100 yards north of the point on which his craft settled stretched Spuyten Duyvel creek, separating Manhattan Island from the mainland. Had he failed to cross this his flight would have been in vain, but as he swept over it, the prize was his. Thence to Governor's Island his task was but a whim of triumph, and the concluding lap of a race already won.

Paulhan's flight from London to Manchester, 186 miles, exceeded Curtiss' feat in distance, but not in speed and danger. The Frenchman's average speed was only 44.3 miles an hour, and below him lay English meadowland.

Curtiss followed the winding course of the historic Hudson, with jutting headland, wooded slopes and treacherous pallsades. He swung high over the great bridge at Poughkeepsie, dipped at times within fifty feet of the river's broad surface, and jockeyed like a falcon at the turns.

Only once did his craft show signs of rebellion. This was off Storm King, near West Point, where at a height of nearly 1000 feet a treacherous gust struck his planes. The machine dropped like a rock for forty feet and tilted perilously. But Curtiss, always cool, kept both his head and his seat, and by adroit handling of his levers brought renewed equilibrium to his aerial steed.

Although he had won, weather conditions were so propitious and he was feeling so gratified at success that he decided to give the city another view of his machine, and at 11:37 he shot away again for Governor's Island. It was during this part of his trip that he received his noisiest greeting. He came down the river at an elevation of more than 300 feet, while harbor craft shrieked their greetings.

Curtiss is 32 years old and was born the Hammondsport, N. Y., the scene of his early experiments.

WORK OF A MANIAC

Hurlie Missile at Head of German Crown Prince and Hits Policeman
Berlin, June 2.—A Polish Jew attempted to kill Crown Prince Frederick William while the latter rode at the head of the Grenadier Guards in the annual review at Tempelhof field.

The would-be assassin was subsequently identified as Abraham Fierweiss. He was captured after a struggle and doctors who examined him say that he is violently insane. That he does not belong to any organized band of conspirators was shown by the weapon that he used, a large zinc pot which had been filled with beans. He hurled the weapon with terrific force, however, and it narrowly missed the head of the crown prince.

The missile struck the head of a policeman who stood at salute nearby and cut a deep gash in his head.

The crown prince was the representative at the review of the kaiser, who was unable to attend because of the abscess on his wrist.

MRS. RICHMOND GUILTY

Sent to Prison For Life For Murder
In Second Degree

Cambridge, Mass., May 31.—Found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to life imprisonment in the woman's prison at Sherborn is the fate meted out to Mrs. Elizabeth Richmond, who on the night of July 22, 1909, shot and then beat to death with a small axe, Stewart McTavish, in the Hotel Florence, East Cambridge. The jury was out twenty hours.

To all appearances, so far as actions went, Mrs. Richmond stood unmoved as the verdict was announced. On the front row of the spectators' seats her three daughters sat calm, no movement or look betraying that they were moved by the verdict against their mother.

DISEASE MADE
RAPID STRIDESEx-Mayor Hibbard of Boston
Dies From Tuberculosis

Boston, May 31.—George A. Hibbard, ex-mayor of Boston, died at his home in Dorchester. Peacefully and painlessly dissolution came. The man who only a few months ago was mayor of the city had made a heroic though brief resistance against tuberculosis, but the disease permeated his entire system and every day found him less capable of holding its progress in check.

George Albee Hibbard was born in Boston, Oct. 27, 1864. He graduated from the Roxbury high school in 1880 and married in Boston, Oct. 27, 1886, Miss M. A. Ford.

He engaged in wholesale produce business with his father eight years and then engaged in business as a member of the firm of Weston K. Lewis & Co., commercial paper and bonds. Later he was treasurer of the Hibbard & Mason corporation, tailors.

He was a member of the Massachusetts house of representatives in 1894-1895, and a delegate to the national Republican convention at St. Louis in 1896. He was postmaster of Boston from 1900 to 1908 and mayor of Boston in 1908-1910.

Mr. Hibbard contested for the mayoralty in 1910 and was defeated. He was nominated by Mayor Fitzgerald for city collector and was refused confirmation by the civil service commission.

He was ambitious to lead men from the time of leaving school. His father was a Democrat. Hibbard was known as a reformer both in the post-office and in city hall.

Home Course
In Domestic ScienceIII.—Cost of Food In Moderate Homes.By EDITH G. CHARLTON,
In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa
State College.Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

It was Ruskin who said, "Sure good is first in feeding people, then in dressing people, then in lodging people and last in rightly pleasing people with arts or science or any other subject of thought."

If Ruskin is right, and we know he is, then it behooves all those who are interested in homemaking and housekeeping to see to it that their duty is well performed; that the results of their labor are not only bringing good to people, but also making good people. This means improving their physical conditions, training them to higher ideals and truer standards of living. The standard of life will determine the character of the home, and whenever homes and family life are not what civilization and Christianity teach they should be the cause will invariably be found to be wrong standards.

The cost of living depends on the ideas and standards of the persons spending the money, or else it depends on the total disregard for them. The question of how much our living shall cost is more of education than of location, so a scale of expenditures cannot be given that will be suitable in every particular to any locality. Local conditions must be taken into consideration to some extent, though it is generally found that large expenditure in one department of housekeeping can be readily balanced by various economies in another.

Any woman who has a right standard of life will not be satisfied to spend all the income for physical needs. She will want a balance for those things which are termed higher life, education and all those advantages which develop the mental and moral side of the family. It has been repeatedly proved that when the family income is adjusted so as to leave at least 25 per cent of it for matters not connected with material living there is contentment in the family circle and a desire among the individual members to reach the highest attainments of true manhood and womanhood. It is not my purpose in this article to attempt to do more than show what portion of the income should be reserved for food and how that amount can be spent in order to keep within the margin and to satisfy the physical needs of the family.

It has been said that one-half the cost of living is the cost of food, and it has been shown over and over again that it is not the food actually eaten which costs so excessively as it is what is wasted by poor cooking, preparing too large quantities and buying out of season.

Meals at 18 Cents a Day.
An income of from $1,000 to $1,500 should allow no more than 18 to 25 cents a day for each person for food, or not more than 22 per cent of the total incomes. To feed a family of five persons on 90 cents a day, or 18 cents each, requires thought and considerable planning on the part of the housekeeper. But on that amount it is possible to provide good nourishing meals every day and in amount sufficient for all the needs of the body. This is not a mere theoretical statement, for in many homes in this country less than $1 a day is being spent on the table.

To buy wisely on a small margin requires some knowledge of food values, because it is necessary to have the daily meals represent a given amount of protein, fat, sugar and starch, mineral matter and water. These food constituents must be provided every day if the body is to be kept in normal condition.

Total, 44 oz. protein, 2 oz. fat and 16 oz. starch.

The question now is, Which of these foods can be provided for 18 cents a day for each person? Not those out of season nor quickly perishable nor those brought to the consumer from a distance. Such foods are always expensive and may not contain any more nutriment than foods produced in home markets. For instance, in all inland localities oysters are high priced because they are very perishable and because of the cost of transportation. They are one of the most easily digested foods, eaten raw or when slightly cooked, and they contain considerable nutriment. But as a tissue building food or a meat substitute they are not nearly as valuable as some other articles of the diet. A person would need to eat fourteen oysters to derive a quantity of protein from them equal to that contained in one egg, and one pound of beefsteak is equal in tissue building material to 150 oysters, or about the number contained in three quarts. Thus it readily can be seen that individuals or families may be well fed and never eat an oyster, in providing food on an economical basis the line must sometimes be drawn rather sharply between appetite and hunger.

Prices differ in various localities, and it is impossible to suggest definite menus that everywhere can be provided for a certain sum of money. However, in the greater portion of this country a selection may be made from the following list of food materials by persons living on from 15 to 25 cents a day:

Beef, mutton, pork or any meat not over 20 cents per pound.
Wheat bread, purchased or homemade.
Butter for the table.
Common cereals.
Buckwheat for cooking.
Whole milk.
Dairy cheese.
Dried fruits.
Cabbage, carrots and other vegetables in season.
Cane or beet sugar.
Flax.
Bacon.
Coffee served with hot milk occasionally.
Tea occasionally.
Local fruits in season.

Serving Cheap Materials.
This list of foods can be varied from day to day by the skillful housekeeper and will furnish not only pleasing variety in the meals, but the required nourishment. But when the coarser, cheaper foods are used greater care must be taken in their preparation. Any food, no matter how rare and expensive, can be spoiled by careless or ignorant cooking, and the commonest food material, presenting perhaps few possibilities for a tempting dish, can be made most appetizing by careful preparation and serving. So it all comes back to the original statement that the cost of the table does not depend so much on the price of food materials as it does on the knowledge and skill of the cook or on the lack of those essentials to success.

When the variety of food from which to make a selection is limited it is necessary to know a number of ways in which to serve the same article as it appears on the table day after day. If oatmeal must be the staple breakfast dish five mornings out of seven, try the addition of a handful of dates from which the stones have been removed. Cook the oatmeal thoroughly in a double boiler or fireless cooker and add the dates about half an hour before serving. It will be necessary, too, very often to use the cheaper cuts of meat when the family is living on 18 cents a day; but these are more appetizing if carefully prepared than the expensive steaks or roasts that have been improperly cooked. The following recipes may afford variety in the dinner menu and may suggest to the housekeeper ideas in serving some of the cheaper meats:

Cannelloni of Beef.
Two pounds of lean beef cut from round, grated rind of half a lemon, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, little grated nutmeg, one teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Chop meat finely and add remaining ingredients in order given. Shape in a roll about six inches long, wrap in buttered paper, place in a dripping pan and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Bake every five minutes with one-quarter cup of butter melted in one cup of boiling water. Serve with espagnole sauce.

Esperanto Sauce.
Two tablespoonfuls butter, two tablespoonfuls flour, half a teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful chopped red pepper or pimento, cup hot water, three teaspoonfuls Worcestershire sauce and a lemon thinly sliced. Melt butter, add flour and salt and, when blended, pour on hot water. Cook thoroughly, stirring until thickened. Then add chopped pepper, Worcestershire sauce and, last, the sliced lemon.

Sauce.
Half cup stock, half cup cream, two tablespoonfuls flour, teaspoonful salt, half teaspoonful pepper and tablespoonful capers. Add salt and pepper to flour. Dilute with cold water. Add to stock and stir. Add cream and cook with capers.

Pot Roast.
Two pounds chuck beef. Sear all sides with hot fat. Put in kettle and cover with boiling water. Add half small onion, a cup diced carrots, two tablespoonfuls vinegar and four cloves. Simmer four hours. Serve with raisin sauce.

Emergency Sauce.
Strain liquid in which pot roast was cooked. To two cups add half cup sifted peas and thicken with tablespoonful flour blended with two tablespoonfuls melted butter.

Stew Supreme.
Three pounds veal, half pound lean bacon, three sliced carrots, six small onions, three cloves, blade of mace, salt and pepper to taste, half cup of tomato catchup and tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce. Cut meat into small pieces and brown in butter. Add the vegetables and seasoning and pour over enough boiling water to cover. Let simmer for an hour or until meat is tender. Arrange meat on serving platter, rub sauce and vegetables through a sieve, add the tomato and Worcestershire sauces, pour around the veal and serve with small piece of toast.

Lamson & Hubbard

Light in Weight.
Holds Perfect Shape.

The L. & H. Sennett Straws are made for Summer wear, not just to keep the sun off. Though of an extremely light weight, they retain their shapes because of the L. & H. sizing and special drying and pressing process. Edges are carefully treated to prevent breaking down. The oval is so shaped as to make an easy and comfortable fit, so that an L. & H. stays on without binding the head. The silk trimmings and linings are those that appeal to the well-dressed man. The "Man who Cares" lays his hat down so that the L. & H. mark shows. Made in many proportions as to height of crown and width of brim, so that every well-dressed man can be suited.

Man Dies In Yonkers Hospital
of Strange Malady

WIFE IS CLOSELY QUESTIONED

Coroner's Inquiry Reveals Secret
Wedding of Man Fifty-Nine Years Old to Widow of Twenty-Three—Married For "Companionship" and Agreement Was Made to Live Apart
Until Husband Recouped Fortune

New York, June 2.—Through the decision of Coroner Iles to hold an inquest into the death of Edward F. Hollister of Tremont, who died in St. John's hospital, this city, after a short illness, it became known that for nearly two years Hollister had been married. His wife was Mrs. Althea K. Raymond, daughter of Willis W. Knickerbocker of this city. Not even the parents of the young woman knew that she was Mrs. Hollister until her husband died. Hollister was 59 years old. Mrs. Hollister is 23 years old.

According to Mrs. Hollister, she married because she was lonely. The couple never lived together, and it was agreed, she said, at the time of the marriage, in October, 1908, that they would not live as husband and wife until Hollister could recoup the fortune he had lost during the panic of 1907. Hollister had been a friend of the Knickerbocker family for years. Coroner Iles ordered the inquest into the death of Hollister because of the peculiar circumstances surrounding his death. An autopsy has been performed, but the physicians present report that the man's death was due to natural causes.

Mrs. Hollister has been questioned by both the police and the coroner, and is now in a state of collapse. Her husband, she said, was taken ill on Saturday, a week ago. She nursed him for a couple of days. Seeing him grow weaker she thought it best to have him taken to St. John's hospital. Hollister was too weak to talk after being taken to the hospital.

It was not until the physicians told the young wife told her husband could not live that she told her father that she had married Hollister. Mrs. Hollister was at the hospital from the time her husband was taken there until he died.

Immediately after his death, Coroner Iles and Dr. Barnes, the hospital physician, questioned Mrs. Hollister at length. Mrs. Hollister said: "The coroner asked me many questions about the drugs my husband had taken. Mr. Iles said it looked as though he had taken ground glass."

The coroner ordered an autopsy. Barnes, who performed it, said: "The autopsy shows death was due to natural causes."

Coroner Iles, however, has decided not to end his investigation until an inquest has been held and all the facts brought out.

Mrs. Hollister's first marriage occurred in 1901. She was only 19 years old at the time. On an excursion to West Point in 1906 she was married by a justice of the peace to George Raymond, a wealthy mine promoter and prospector. Raymond was killed in a mine explosion a year later. He left a large fortune to his widow.

Speaking of her marriage, Mrs. Hollister said Hollister was best man at her father's wedding, that he carried her in his arms as a baby, and that their wedding was due to the loneliness of both.

Proclamation Read on Anniversary of Close of Boer War

Pretoria, June 1.—The Union of South Africa has been born. The proclamation of the single dominion constituted by the legislative union of the British colonies of Cape Colony, Orange River Colony, Natal and the Transvaal, was read at the assembly house here, where just eight years ago the leaders of the Boers signed the British terms of peace, which brought to an end the war in South Africa.

The occasion was made a holiday and celebrations were general. Following the reading of the proclamation Viscount Gladstone was sworn in as governor general of the union, and Premier Botha and the other members of the new ministry took the oath of office.

Well Known Bacteriologist
Succumbs to Heart Disease

DEATH OF DR. KOCH

He Gained Great Reputation as Discoverer of Tuberculosis Germs

Baden Baden, May 29.—Professor Robert Koch, the famous bacteriologist, died here from a disease of the heart. He was born at Klausthal, Hanover, Dec. 11, 1843.

Professor Koch became distinguished as an investigator of micro-organisms, but probably gained most renown as the discoverer of the bacilli of tuberculosis and cholera.

Professor Koch received decorations from the German and French governments for his discoveries. He visited the United States in 1906 and attended the international tuberculosis conference in Philadelphia.

WALSH LEADER IN FARO BUNCO GANG

Identified When Pictures of
"Jack Leonard" Are Shown

Boston, June 2.—"Jack Leonard," the man of mystery who played such a prominent part in connection with "Big Bill" Kellher in swindling George W. Coleman by means of fake faro in New York, according to the sworn story of Coleman on the witness stand, was identified as Martin J. Walsh, regarded as "the brains of the faro bunco gang."

Coleman told on the stand how "Jack" induced him to begin gambling after he had quit the game by introducing him to Kellher in Boston a year ago. George H. Lowe, who knew Walsh well, identified pictures in the trial of Kellher as those of Walsh, that Coleman and Lockhart had previously declared were the pictures of "Jack."

"Jack" disappeared when the coils of the law began to close about Coleman. He had lived luxuriously on Huntington avenue. Prospective victims of the faro gang, it has been declared, were wine and dined in Walsh's establishment. Walsh's whereabouts are not known, as he fled when the expose came.

WAR ON RATE INCREASE

Wickersham Will Ask Federal Courts For an Injunction

Washington, June 1.—President Taft has instructed Attorney General Wickersham to bring an injunction suit against twenty-five railroads in the middle west which have served notice upon the interstate commerce commission of an intention to increase freight rates, beginning today.

The suit for injunction will assert that the railroads have entered a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and that the facts indicate that the new rates are the result of a combination clearly in disregard of the provisions of the law. It is expected that there will be a big legal battle.

BOLD ADVICE
GIVEN BRITAIN

No Mincing of Words in an Address by Roosevelt

THE GOVERNMENT OF EGYPT

Now the Best It Has Had in Two Thousand Years, but England Has Erred in Vital Points, Says Ex-President—Timidity and Sentimentality Declared to Be Worse Than Injustice—Speech Creates a Stir

London, June 1.—Theodore Roosevelt was presented with the freedom of the city of London, and he accepted the honor with a literalism that led him into a frankness of speech that created a sensation in old Guild hall.

As the former head of a country that once paid tribute to Great Britain the American statesman gave the motherland some bold advice as to her duty toward her most troublesome dependency in Africa. Mr. Roosevelt eulogized British rule in Uganda and the Sudan. He also declared that Great Britain had given Egypt the best government that the country had had in two thousand years, but in certain vital points it had erred. Timidity and sentimentality, he said, might cause more harm than violence and injustice.

"Sentimentality," he added, "is the most broken reed upon which righteousness can lean."

Mr. Roosevelt denounced the Nationalist party of Egypt as neither desirous nor capable of guaranteeing primary justice. It was trying to bring murderous chaos upon the land. Either it was or it was not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt and establish order throughout that country. If it was not right to further this purpose then the British should get out. Some nation, said the former president, must govern Egypt. He hoped and believed that the English would decide that the duty was theirs.

As a whole the speech constituted the most forcible expression on foreign topics that the distinguished visitor has made during his European tour. He dealt principally with the British policy in Egypt, which is today one of the most discussed of Great Britain's colonial questions. His outspoken views sent a thrill through the auditors which is likely to be felt outside the walls of the ancient council hall.

Mr. Roosevelt was driven in state from Ambassador Reid's home to Guild hall, but the weather was not propitious and comparatively few persons witnessed the procession.

The parchment conveying to Roosevelt the freedom of the city was contained in a beautiful gold casket. The presentation was made by Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, the city chamberlain, who spoke briefly.

Following the exercises Sir John Knill, the lord mayor of London, entertained Roosevelt at a private luncheon at which many prominent personages were present. The casket presented to Roosevelt was oblong in form, the front and reverse side being divided into four panels bearing enamel painted views of Guild hall, the Mansion house, St. Paul's cathedral and the Tower bridge. The centre was occupied by the full blazon of the city arms in enamel with an ornamental shield below containing the inscription. At the four corners were enameled the arms of England, the United States and the city shield and Union Jack. The base was of solid silver, having at one end a finely modeled American bison and at the other end the British lion. The base stood upon eight bold feet with a lower pedestal of oak and velvet.

CHURCH BUILT IN A HURRY

Ready For Occupancy Ten Hours After Big Gang Start to Work

Peoria, Ill., May 31.—Services were held in the chapel of Central Christian church, built in ten hours by members of the congregation. The church was perfect in its completion, electrically lighted and with an electric sign above the entrance.

The building is 64 feet long, 24 feet wide and 12 feet high inside. Under the supervision of D. C. Chaffee, who planned the structure, 190 men started work at 8 o'clock yesterday morning. At 6 o'clock last evening chimes on the various other churches throughout the city were rung to announce the completion of the mushroom structure.

Milk War Continues

Boston, June 1.—Boston's great milk war, which contractors and producers alike believed would end yesterday afternoon, now appears to be no nearer a termination than at any previous stage in the hostilities. After a long conference with two of the contracting firms, the representatives of the producers announced that no agreement had been reached and that the strike was still in force.

Washington, June 2.—The supreme court of the United States has advanced the so-called Government Panama libel suit against the Press Publishing company of New York for hearing Oct. 4.

CHARLES HENRY TREAT

He Succumbs Shortly
After Being Stricken

TREAT DIES SUDDENLY

Former Treasurer of United States Is Stricken With Apoplexy

New York, June 1.—Charles H. Treat, until a few months ago treasurer of the United States, to which position he was appointed by President Roosevelt, died of apoplexy in his apartments at the Hotel Victoria. He was stricken an hour before his death, and did not regain consciousness.

Mr. Treat was born in Frankfurt, Me., 68 years ago and was a descendant of an old New England family. Among his ancestors were Robert Treat Paine, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and Robert Treat, a colonial governor of Connecticut.

When he resigned his post as treasurer Treat gave as his reason private business which demanded his attention. He was interested in several mining and navigation companies. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

BOSTON RANKS AS MOST PIOUS CITY

There Are 32,936,445 Church
Members in the United States

Washington, June 1.—Boston leads all the big cities of the country in the number of church attendance. More than 60 percent of its people are communicants.

The aggregate number of communicants or members of all religious denominations in continental United States for 1906 was 32,936,445, according to the United States census of religious bodies. Of this grand total the various Protestant bodies reported 20,287,142 and the Roman Catholic church 12,679,142.

Of the Protestant communicants, according to the report, 80.6 percent were outside the principal cities of the country. Of the Catholics 27.9 percent were in the cities of the first class; these having a population of more than 300,000.

In the five leading cities the proportion of communicants to population was: New York, 44.7 percent, Chicago 40.7 percent, Philadelphia 35.8 percent, Boston 62.6 percent, St. Louis 46.6 percent.

GOTCH STILL UNCONQUERED

Champion Wrestler Defeats Polander in Two Straight Falls

Chicago, June 2.—Frank Gotch, world's champion heavyweight wrestler, defended his title against Zbyszko, the giant Polander, winning the match in two straight falls.

The champion made a fine record in the first fall. The men had barely come together when Gotch got his hold, a bar and half Nelson, and Zbyszko's shoulders were on the mat and he was adjudged to have lost the fall in 6 1/2 seconds. This is the fastest time for a fall in any championship match on record.

Gotch won the second fall and match in 27.36 on a bar arm and wrist lock.

Samples of French Justice

Paris, June 2.—Henri de Lorme, a Paris banker, who moved in the best society and who swindled clients to the amount of $1,000,000, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment. Henri Fournier, who stole a pint of cognac, received a similar sentence.

Fitzherbert Wins Brooklyn Handicap

Gravesend Race Track, N. Y., June 1.—The Brooklyn Handicap, its value as a stake shrunk to $6000, as compared with $19,750 two years ago, was won in easy fashion by Sam Hildreth's Fitzherbert in the presence of a thinned-out crowd.

THE STATE BY A COUNTRYMAN ABROAD

Ex-Mayor Hibbard

The death of ex-Mayor Hibbard of Boston is a particularly sad one. Few of his friends throughout the state had realized how severely he was stricken. From all sides the deepest sympathy of Massachusetts citizens will go out to the bereaved family.

We can see little reason for much of the discussion that has followed his death. A great deal of it is not only out of place, but it has little truth for a background. That Mr. Hibbard was not confirmed as one of the recent appointees to office in Boston was unfortunate, but as we have said before, we believe the men who declined to approve his selection were honest, and as events have proven, wise in their refusal.

Mr. Hibbard is not the first man who has been on the high wave of political popularity, holding a position enabling him to bestow gifts and favors upon his friends, only to find in his reverses, that not one in a hundred of the fawning, cringing herd in the day of his prosperity was left in the day of adversity. Neither is Mr. Hibbard the only honest man who ever held a political office. That he did his best is not denied. That he was far from being a success as Mayor of the city is the universal verdict of those who are informed as to Boston affairs. He did, however, perform a service as Chief Executive of Boston, and his credit for that service is fixed. No political demagogism in press or pulpit will make of him a great statesman or a great martyr.

It would be far better if his efficient service in the work he did well, rather than a tirade of abuse for men who may have been unjust in their estimate of him, should be the basis for his lasting monument.

Let No Guilty Dollar Escape

There is now before the Legislature a bill which contemplates giving to the Tax Commissioner the right to open the safety deposit box of a deceased person and examine his securities at once upon his death. This with the purpose of giving to the tax officials their own knowledge first hand of what property a man may be possessed of at his death.

Perhaps this is good legislation, but if it is, amendments should be in order, providing that the tax officials shall also have the right to perform autopsies on bodies, that they may discover to what extent gold fillings in teeth have been taken away from property of value within the commonwealth; they should also have the right to examine all books of accounts of all private businesses; all jewel cases of individuals; all time-ecies carried by men and women; all rings upon fingers belonging to the living or dead; all memoranda that men may be possessed of, evidencing a possibility that they may increase their property holdings here or hereafter.

By no means let such a law as this stop at the examination of a man's safe deposit vaults after he is dead. Begin on him at once and pursue to the natural end along this particular line, and if he and his brothers are not dead very shortly, it will be because they have moved into another state to rid themselves of some of the ridiculous legislation that marks the Massachusetts attempt to tax individuals and businesses out of existence.

Editorial Cinders

A bill presented by Representative Dean of Wakefield providing for the imposition of an income tax on all incomes over $2,000 has a great deal to recommend it. The Legislature has done wisely in refusing to approve the resolve which would allow the Federal Government to collect a general income tax. Already Massachusetts has an income tax, the proceeds of which she needs for her own internal improvements. No one questions some of the weaknesses attendant upon the working of this tax. But the flat proposition that all incomes over $2,000 shall pay such a tax would seem to do away with many of the intricacies now encountered. Without the text before us, we have no knowledge as to the details of Representative Dean's proposition, but to the average man, loyal first to his state, the suggestion has much of merit in it.

Congratulations to Governor Draper on his second veto of a bad piece of legislation, in the far-famed eight hour bill. He hasn't given all the reasons in his message that may be advanced why this is bad legislation, but he has given enough, and there are many other people who have their own reasons equally sound.

Rev. Frederic Palmer Honored

The following article from last night's Boston Transcript is of interest to Andover.

"Well merited is the honor accorded to Rev. Frederic Palmer, rector of Christ church, Andover, by the Cambridge Theological school. That institution has not been lavish in its bestowal of its degrees of Doctor of Divinity, having previously given it only to Rev. Charles Lewis Slattery, now of Grace church, New York. Unlike Dr. Slattery, Dr. Palmer is not a graduate of the school, which makes the honor accorded him all the more noteworthy; but by his sug-

THE TOWN BY A COUNTRYMAN AT HOME

Two Important Views

Andover was fortunate in the splendid address given Memorial Day by Principal Stearns. Eloquent and meaty, there was suggestion in it, not only of the power of the orator, keen thought of the scholar, and wise deduction of the man of affairs, but there was the suggestion through it all that one of the nation's leading educators was giving to the boys in his care something more than the lessons to be gained from books.

It is interesting to note that Principal Stearns sees out of his large experience an actual trend that most men see who mix with affairs of the world, and one cannot help calling attention to one of the statements in which he said that "the spirit of democracy is in danger of dying out in our land; that already social distinction is beginning to make itself felt through the setting up of barriers between the people on account of wealth and power possessed by some of the people."

Few men who have touched the outside world will fail to agree with Mr. Stearns in this position, yet on the very day in which Mr. Stearns made this statement, one of the Andover clergymen, in an address to the same veterans took the exactly opposite view by stating that "the spirit of democracy and brotherhood among men is growing stronger and more widespread, and that all men are coming to regard each other as equals." It would be interesting to have further reasons given by Principal Stearns and Rev. Mr. Walker for their two so totally different views. Possibly they may be explained by the different environments of the two men, but the weight of evidence would seem to be very strong in favor of the statement by Principal Stearns, even though one might wish that the contention of Mr. Walker were sound.

Memorial Day

A leading Grand Army man makes the serious suggestion that Memorial Day should be abolished. It is not difficult to understand that sort of a temperament, possessed by a loyal soldier of the War of the Rebellion, that would lead to such a desire as this. The day means to such a man a great deal more than it can possibly mean to the average citizen, and because the viewpoint of his neighbor is so different from his, the grieving and sorrowing nature naturally revolts at many of the events which mark Memorial Day. While one sympathizes with this suggestion, it doesn't seem to the man who lives in the present, and not in the past, that Memorial Day could be abolished without very serious loss to the civic uplift of the nation. If there were no other results than the gathering together of thousands of audiences to listen to timely patriotism linked with a glorious past, it would be sufficient.

No, do not abolish Memorial Day; rather emphasize its teachings more and more each year, and while the inspiration to come from the gray-haired soldier may be lost, may it be a long time before the inspiration from his deeds shall cease to be powerful with the boys and girls who are coming along generation after generation.

Editorial Cinder

Andover is at last awakening to the automobile, and no better evidence of the truth of this assertion could be asked than the increased facilities being provided by the local dealers. This week Buxton and Coleman began the remodeling of a very superior location for a new garage at the corner of Park and Bartlett streets. At the same time, announcement is made that Buchan and Myerscough find their quarters already overtaxed, making it necessary for them to enlarge and improve their more recently constructed garage. This is good if it is not representing an excess of expenditure beyond what people can afford. It is all very pretty to talk about the "automobile age," but sometimes things are of age before they are twenty-one. It is to be hoped that the natural conservatism of Andover will not forsake her in the present tendency toward living the auto pace.

gestiveness as a writer and his power as a preacher he has well won the Cambridge institution's rarely-bestowed title. Dr. Palmer's larger title is already written in his record of helpfulness in the delightful old historic town whose Episcopal parish he has served so long. He is a brother of Professor George Herbert Palmer of Harvard.

HONORING THE DEAD

Usual Memorial Day Exercises Successfully Carried Out on Monday

Memorial Day was observed by the local G. A. R. Post and kindred organizations in much the same manner as in previous years. On Sunday morning Gen. William F. Bartlett Post, 99, Gen. William F. Bartlett Corps, No. 127, and Walter L. Raymond Camp, Sons of Veterans, attended divine service at the Free church. The bright, beautiful weather was alluring and the organizations were well represented. The musical portions of the service were appropriate to the occasion, the choir rendering the wellknown anthem, "God of Our Fathers." Rev. F. A. Wilson preached the sermon, taking his text from Psalm 137:5-6.

Monday morning dawned grey with clouds, but even the inauspicious weather did not deter the thin blue ranks from forming, with almost as many in them as last year witnessed. Fewer joined in the line of march on foot, however; every year brings its increasing age, and several carriages were called into requisition.

At eight o'clock the veterans, escorted by the associate members, Sons of Veterans and Woman's Relief Corps, proceeded to Memorial Hall, where the usual brief exercises were conducted. Prayer was offered by Rev. F. R. Shipman, after which the tablet was decorated. The tribute to Andover's soldiers having been paid, the march was continued to the town hall. Here a program similar to that of former years was carried out. The musical portions of the exercises were sustained by the Andover Brass Band and a large chorus of school children. The latter sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Little Bronze Button," in a very acceptable manner. The orders were read by Adj. J. Warren Berry. Lincoln's Gettysburg address was then read by Perley Gilbert, and Commander Geo. W. Chandler made several appropriate remarks. The oration of the day was then delivered by Principal Alfred E. Stearns of Phillips Academy. Principal Stearns is always welcomed by an Andover audience, and the earnest, impressive words he spoke on Monday will not soon pass out of the minds of his hearers.

Mr. Stearns began by congratulating the veterans not only on their achievements during the war, but also on their conduct since the war, on the honorable, straightforward lives they have led as private citizens since 1865. He then went on to speak of the relations which now exist between the North and the South, and of the danger of being over-zealous in honoring the South. While the Southerners should have all the honor due them for their courage and bravery, still they could not and cannot merit the peculiar distinction which should be given to the Northern men who fought for the higher and better ideal. Among the many lessons which could be drawn from the lives of the G. A. R. men, Mr. Stearns then mentioned two in particular, which can be applied to present day living. The first was the obedience to authority which the men of '61-'65 learned so well, and by which citizens of today should take example. The second point was the spirit of democracy which was so noticeable in the Civil war, where rich and poor fought side by side, and which is the need of the country today. The address was brought to a close with a few simple words of congratulation.

Upon the completion of the exercises in the town hall, the line was again formed, and, headed by a platoon of police, proceeded to the South cemetery. Here the graves of the veterans were decorated by the school children. A detachment of the Sons of Veterans also visited the Episcopal cemetery. Barges were then taken for Spring Grove cemetery, where brief exercises were held at the Soldiers' monument. West Andover was the next place on the program to be visited. There it had been arranged to hold a service in the new memorial chapel, which has just been completed. Long before the arrival of the G. A. R. men, the little building with its rich carvings half hidden in the dim light coming in through the beautiful stained glass windows, was filled with people. Shortly after twelve o'clock, in the chapel's half-light, one of the most impressive of the day's exercises took place. A few words of prayer by Professor Ryder, a short address by Rev. Dean Walker, a rendering of "To Thee, O Country," by a quartet of Punchard girls, and all was over but the placing of flowers on the graves in the cemetery. The opportunity of holding the service in the chapel was much appreciated, as it added in no small degree to the program of the day.

Thus one more Memorial Day passed. May all who wore the little bronze buttons in their coat lapels and carried so many memories in their hearts, gather again next year to perform again their loving service.

Abbot Academy Notes

Saturday evening, before a very interested audience of school and friends, the French Department presented a one-act comedy, "La Cigale chez les Fourmis," by Legourez and La Biche. It was an amusing little play and was acted with much spirit. The parts of the retired manufacturer his bourgeois wife and their charming daughter and her lover were all well taken, and the French was spoken fluently and accurately.

The synopsis is given below.
M. and Mme. Chameroay await a visit from M. de Verac, a young nobleman. Their daughter, Henriette, is surprised to learn that he is a possible suitor. Discovering through a misdirected letter that the count's family considers Henriette unsophisticated, the mother stings and her father common, they resolve to change their whole manner of living. M. Paul de Vineuil, poor but gay and extravagant, comes to pay a debt. He is a friend of M. de Verac and gladly suggests to the distressed family ways in which they can win the latter's favor. The arrival of a letter in which de Verac withdraws his suit finally arouses such anger in de Vineuil that Henriette discovers he has himself fallen in love with her. Paul has departed, promising to come again, and Henriette is declaring to her parents that he is the one she will marry if he wants her, and she continues to find him to her taste when he returns for his umbrella just in time to hear her last words.

The cast of characters:
Paul de Vineuil Dora Heys
Chameroay, industrial retiré Jessie Wightman
Mme. Chameroay, sa femme Ethel Swain
Henriette, leur fille Mary Hall
Uncle Domestique Corinne Willard
La scene ne passe a Paris
Piano Duet, Op. 31 Schubert
Miss Wiest, Miss M. Copeland

On Memorial Day the Seniors decorated the grave of Madam Abbot in the South church burial ground by placing on it a pillow of box with a white A, which they had made themselves from flowers and box out of Mrs. Draper's garden. It seemed especially appropriate that the flowers should have come from Mrs. Draper, who is one of the few people in town who can remember drinking tea with Madam Abbot.

On Monday the Seniors also enjoyed a picnic at Alderbrook farm, while on Tuesday was held their Senior banquet in Draper Hall.

Enjoyable Recital

Miss Torrey's pupils' recital was held last night at the house of N. E. Bartlett, and was much enjoyed by over a hundred guests. The occasion was a creditable one to all concerned, and the only thing to regret was that Miss Torrey herself was unable to be present. The good rhythm and gentle touch of all the performers was commendable, and also their careful use of the pedal. Especially good were the Capriccio of Jungmann, played by Miss Edith Stack; the Rheinberger Impromptu, played by Miss Edith Whipple; the Chopin waltz, played by Miss Elizabeth Bartlett; the Moszkowski Bolero for violin, played by Miss Mira Wilson; and the Hungarian Dances of Brahms, played by Miss Edith Johnson. The program was greatly enhanced by the orchestra, and the excellent singing of Miss Forbes of Reading, whose beautiful soprano voice we shall hope to hear in Andover again. The program follows.

Andover Defeated

In a six inning game played on Brothers' field Friday with Manhattan College, Phillips Andover was defeated four to one. The visitors had a strong team and showed their superiority over Andover at every turn. Gile pitched for Andover and did good work, especially in the fifth inning. Wright was back in his position and showed good form. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6
Andover	0	0	0	1	0	0

Punchard 17; Pinkerton 7

Punchard defeated the Pinkerton Academy nine of Derry, N. H., 17-7 in a loosely played and one sided game on the Playstead on Friday afternoon. Punchard's men played well, gaining the lead in the first inning by scoring 7 runs and keeping ahead throughout the remainder of the play. The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7
Pinkerton	0	0	0	0	0	0	0

Harvard Wins

Phillips Andover was defeated by the Harvard Varsity team on Monday morning by the score of 7 to 1. The game was rather one sided and Andover was placed at a decided disadvantage throughout the entire game. Harvard took the lead in the first inning, scoring three points, and adding one in the third, fourth, seventh and last innings. Andover made her only run in the seventh. Wright, Reilly and Dougherty played good ball for the home team, while Lanigan and McLaughlin excelled for the visitors. The former, who is captain of the Harvard team, and Brown, the catcher, were formerly Andover men and their appearance on the field was greeted with cheers. The score:

Cricket

The Andover Cricket club had as their opponents last Saturday the Zions of Lowell, in a Merrimack Valley league game at Andover. The weather was splendid for cricket, and a good number of spectators were present. Andover had three new men in their team and everyone of them did well. Andover went to bat first. W. Black and W. Haddon were first batsmen against the bowling of Crofts and Chapman.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Schools

I was amused by the answer I got from a neighbor the other day. Her boy had left the job he had and when asked where he was now working the reply was, "Oh, he is at school. He is not working. We are to try and give him an education so that he will not have to work for a living."

Let me say that this notion of not having to work is absurd, and yet it is a common delusion. If the boy at the high school does not attend to his lessons and work hard to keep up with all the "ologs" he will not get his diploma, and after he gets that precious and not to be despised document he has to work to get a living.

The false notion that working in a factory or on a farm or digging drains with a pick and a spade is work and that a doctor, a clergyman, a book-keeper, or a storekeeper does not work is only found out to be false when the boy with half a dozen diplomas tries to earn a living.

This is supposed to be a dollar worshipping age. Let us see how this high school thing works out in dollars and cents. It may be as well to say here that I have no sympathy for the maudlin sentiment uttered by well-intentioned would-be philanthropists when they lament and deplore sending the healthy boy or girl to work so as to earn a dollar. Take a common case, a girl of 14 has a grammar school diploma. Her parents think it a good plan for her to go through the high school and then through the normal school so as to be qualified to get a place as a teacher. I am not saying that this is a wrong thing to do, far from it. But let us put this thing fairly at its cost. This will mean at least seven years. Now during all that time this would-be teacher has not earned a cent. Well, if a clever girl, she may during vacation be a waitress at a summer hotel and come home with as much as buy a hat and a pair of boots. Taking it as we find it, it is seven years that will cost somebody at least four dollars a week for 350 weeks—1,400 dollars. The girl may then get a place as teacher and we know the salary she may expect.

Then suppose this same girl when she was 14 went to work in a factory she earns money honestly, has short hours of work, and has Saturday afternoon and Sunday to herself. During seven years she has earned at the present rate of wages 300 dollars a year—2100 dollars. You can see that the teacher girl has cost 1,400 dollars, while the factory girl has earned 2100 dollars. I merely put it in dollars and cents. It is for those interested to judge. I merely note that the work a teacher has to do is really hard arduous work. I waive the question of the salary she gets. I only combat the foolish notion that being educated means an easy life without work.

Let us now see how the boy's schooling counts in dollars. After the four years high school course he may see his way to go through to Yale or Harvard; that I don't count just now in the dollar sense, I only take his four high school years that has cost somebody 600 dollars, while the boy who went to work during these four years has earned 1200 dollars.

Of course this boy has a chance and many boys embrace it and gain a few dollars in vacation time and by doing lots of useful work in spare hours, all of which of course helps to reduce the 600 dollars I have given as necessary for his four years upkeep.

Follow this boy with his high school diploma. Every business man knows and everybody who faces it knows that this high school learning does not give a salary bigger to begin with than the boy of 14 got at the factory and the business man will not keep this high school graduate if he does not work and work diligently.

I have tried to show that the decent woman's idea that those who are educated have not to work is a false idea.

I have just finished reading an account of Canadian schools and also of how the Germans teach in their schools. Both systems aim at teaching something to do with the hands as well as the head.

The despising of all honest manual labour in office, farm or factory is to be a serious problem and now one of the problems that the good sense of the people will solve; priggish pedantry and false pride will not solve it. Labour, honest toil of all kinds, is honorable. Work is not a curse. Work is not confined to one class of men. Work is all right; it is over-work and worry that is wrong.

Another erroneous impression is that schools are free; nothing to pay for education. It just costs as about five dollars each a year, man, woman and child in this town. I don't say it costs too much, only that somebody pays for it.

There are some things that money cannot buy. Education is so precious a jewel that all the wealth of the world cannot be compared to it. Good schools are cheap at any price. We have good schools. But as Speaker Cannon says, unless you have some gumption before you go to Harvard or Yale, you just "go in stirks and come out asses."

XXII PSALM

WRITTEN FOR THE TOWNSMAN

O foolish and slow to believe in all that the prophets have spoken; and beginning from Moses and all the prophets he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself. Luke 24:25-27.

If ye believed Moses ye would believe me, for he wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings how shall ye believe my words? Jno. 5:46-47.

He is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying (Ps. 22:22) I will declare thy name unto my brethren; and Heb. 2:12, saying Let us cast lots for it. That the Scripture might be fulfilled (Ps. 22:19) They parted my garments among them and upon my vesture did they cast lots. Jno. 19:24.

Searching what the spirit of Christ did point to where it testified beforehand of the sufferings of Christ and of the glories that should follow them. To whom it was revealed that not unto themselves did they minister the things that have now been announced to you by the Holy Spirit sent forth from heaven. I Pet. 1:12.

We live in a skeptical age. Prejudice against the supernatural would exclude it as far as possible from the Scripture record, and tie God hand and foot to methods which can be explained according to our human experience.

The prophecies of the Old Testament in the view of many writers are only such forecasts as may now be made of the future out of present indications, as Webster foresaw secession, or McKinley the Spanish war; but with no ability to penetrate the distant future.

Portions of Scripture which from the beginning of the Christian era have been supposed to testify beforehand of Christ are now said to have only a local or temporary significance. The 53rd chapter of Isaiah is said to be spoken only of the better part of the Jewish people, considered as the servant of Jehovah.

A distinguished exegete gives about twenty pages of exposition on this 22nd Psalm without the slightest hint that anybody ever supposed that it had reference to Christ.

The passages quoted at the beginning of this article indicate that such was not the opinion of our Lord or of his inspired apostles, to whom he promised that when the spirit of truth should come it should lead them into all truth. Prophecies of the Old Testament, their only Bible, were relied upon in confirmation of what they preached or wrote. Wescott reckons the number of these quotations in the New Testament from the Old at 1270. The second Psalm is quoted seven times in proof of Christ's messiahship. Christ himself appeals to the 110th Psalm as the testimony of David concerning himself, and declares that the Scriptures as a whole testify of him. Jno. 5:39.

The situation described in the Psalm can apply only to Christ, and had he described his sufferings upon for days have compassed me. The assembly of the wicked have inclosed me. Notice in the record how every avenue of escape was closed up. Pilate says, I find no fault in him. The priests reply: If thou let this man go thou art not Caesar's friend. He offers to release him, according to the custom of the feast. But no, they would have Barabbas. Pilate sends him to Herod. There he is mocked and clad in a shabby robe of royalty and sent back. Pilate washes his hands and says, I am guiltless of the blood of this just person. They reply, His blood be upon us and upon our children. Pilate says, I will chastize him and release him. But like the roll of thunder, comes the cry of the populace, Away with him. Crucify him. Crucify him. How apt at this point is verse 13: They gaped upon me with their mouths like a roaring lion (you can almost see their mouths wide open as they shout and scream).

And then his personal and bodily suffering. V. 17: They look and stare upon me. Stripped of his clothing, writhing in agony, stared at by a vast crowd who exult in his torture and humiliation. I may count all my bones. The muscles, drawn by being stretched upon the cross, make the bones as prominent as a skeleton. My strength is dried up; my tongue cleaveth to my jaws, V. 15. Do you wonder that he said "I thirst"? V. 17: They pierced my hands and my feet. Jehovah the prophet says, They shall look upon him whom they have pierced, and mourn. The multitude after the earthquake, and the hours of moonday darkness, went away terror stricken, smiting upon their breasts. V. 18: They parted my garments among them and cast lots upon my vesture, quoted Jno. 19:24. But enough of this too painful comparison.

Perhaps some matter-of-fact person may ask how could the Psalmist have known these minute particulars centuries before the event took place? A sufficient reply is found in I Pet. 1:12: "No prophecy ever came by the will of man; but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit."

Many—not all—miracles are ordinary processes of nature timed in the interests of the kingdom of God. It is not the only time that Jordan's bed was bare by the transient detention of the upper waters. When Israel invaded the promised land.

In the case before us, suppose the poet to have conceived "The Hind of the dawn," chased all night, to escape in the morning, as an image of a troubled soul relieved in due time by help from above, and to have taxed his imagination to have made the case of the sufferer as aggravated as possible, that he might anticipate the most desperate straits from which one might call out to God.

In these days of telepathy and hypnotic suggestion, and after what St. Peter has said above, is it a tax upon our credulity to suppose that the Eternal Spirit who knows the end from the beginning, and without whom nothing can take place, should have so guided the writer's thoughts as to photograph before his hand that one sublime event toward which the whole creation moves?

The unwillingness to suppose that God, in his line of things, can do with nature what man is doing every day, in clothing continents with cities and causing the cage brush to bloom and blossom as the rose.

TO THE COMET

Our brilliant guest. And more than guest perhaps,
With prior right to call this earth your home:
And we here till a few short years elapse,
As stewards of a trust: while you do room.

True type indeed of Him you represent.
Infinite in that no man knows your power.
Immutable because through ages spent,
You have returned exactly to the hour.

What is your mission, Oh mysterious one!
Have you come back to call us to account,
Are we required to show what we have done
Since last you came, describing its amount?

If this be so we lay before you now
A full report to vindicate our worth.
And claim a recognition as to how We have adorned and magnified the earth.

First then, we speak of continents explored:
Their wealth exposed and thereby peoples blest.
By science, kindest gift, is health restored,
And suffering allayed at man's behest.

Perfected almost all our means of travel, Communication likewise made with ease.
Earth's end at last embraced, a greater marvel,
And realms beyond subjected, man to please.

But dare we boast that God's appointed work
We execute with pleasure or with zeal,
The quest of souls a thing we do not shirk, Salvation's joy the greatest joy we feel?

May it be said when you return from space,
That men's first effort is to do God's will.

Living then less by bread and more by grace,
The Lord exalting thus, His word fulfill.

Roger's Garden

Going into the hall on Decoration
Day about noon I found a bare cloth upon the table and an empty bowl on the shelf dedicated to the "six" who lie in the trenches. So I hastened away to get a few pansies, etc., and some green stuff and white stuff to mend the gaps a little. I went to the hall two hours later to see Mr. Holt, who had not returned, but I discovered that some sacrilegious vandal had already taken for a buttonhole. A child who lingered thought it was a "grown up fellow." I wish one could train the average youth's conscience in regard to the peculiar act of trespass we call sacrilege. Whether in the offering of prizes for children's gardens we can reach those who rob other people's little pet patches, remains also to be evolved. Roger had long ago a garden under his own apple tree, with ferns, jack-in-the-pulpit, wild geranium, columbine, and bloodroot, and a screen covered with woodbine to shade it. Within two years, children have destroyed this little green corner. Twenty jacks were pulled up and thrown upon the ground, ferns dug up and carried away, every particle of bloodroot standing hardly for the last eight years has gone and the screen pulled down and "past redemption."

Roger said the boys one day last week set fire to a pile of paper thrown out from the bakery, and the tree trunk of one of the best old Baldwins, remnant of a once extensive orchard along the brook, is badly burned. I have quite a lot of cuttings from newspapers of the vandals of other youth in the suburbs of greater Boston, where lovers of flowers have been obliged to substitute a green lawn, never being able to save a blossom. On one occasion in Andover, the botanical teacher needed forget-me-nots, and one child scraped my bed clean, roots and all.
This spring, while the late owner of the lovely estate on Carter's Hill was lingering in his last illness, some scholars of a public school (not Phillips Academy) in spite of warning signs, entered the grounds and plucked large bouquets of the cherished arbutus, one going to decorate the family burying ground. I sent word by a friend of one of the offenders that the case would be taken up by the Village Improvement Society and the Natural History Society if repeated, and I hope both of these civic associations will feel for Roger's woes and begin a good work on trespass.

Many Going to the Circus

Lawrence and vicinity will be well represented on June 10 at the Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth.
The railroads will make a special low rate and excursions will be run.
A glance at the list of features offered by this circus discloses many wonders. Jupiter, "the Balloon Horse," Desperado, a rash Frenchman, Charlie the First, a chimpanzee, a company of fifty clowns, a member of the Siegrist-Silbon family of aerialists, the Abreu family of Mexican gymnasts, Berzac's horses and Paula Peters' monkey and dog circus.
Other notables are the Kenoy family of riders, the La Faille family of world's strong men. Winston's equestrian seals, the Dollar family of acrobats, and Victoria Codona, the greatest high-wire artist in the world.
In the menagerie are to be found 1,200 rare wild animals. Among them is Bumbo, the only giraffe ever born or exhibited in America. It is but three feet high and worth its weight in gold. There are forty em-phants, 700 horses and 1,280 overees. The show travels on a train over a mile long. The forenoon parade is the most gorgeous affair ever offered by a circus. It cost $1,000,000.

her power as an emotional actress of high degree. The story of Camille is well known, but still in spite of its age it has never lost its hold on all audiences.

HOLLIS STREET

"The Prosecutor," a play containing real melodrama, is being produced by an able company at the Hollis Street theatre. The plot hinges on the reform element in New York and the political "machine." The play is admirably cast, all the parts being in capable hands.

Observed Anniversary

Mrs. John H. Wood observed her 60th birthday at her home on Marland road last Saturday, the occasion being in the form of a family reunion. About twenty children and grandchildren were at home. Just before the happy family adjourned to the dining-room to partake of a bounteous repast, Florence, the youngest daughter, presented her mother with a beautiful silver service in behalf of the other members of the family. She also was the recipient of many other useful and pretty things from her grandchildren and friends, along with hearty congratulations and best wishes for many happy birthdays to come.

Ballardvale Defeated

Ballardvale was defeated on the Playground Saturday afternoon in their opening game of the season, by the Haverhill A. A., in a loosely played game, by the score of 15 to 5. For the home team, while Turner batted hard and was given poor support in the field, he struck out nine men and gave but one base on balls. Sullivan led the batting, one of his singles sending in two runs.

For the visitors, Bouvier pitched a good game, not issuing a pass to first during the game. A. Bouvier, H. Bouvier and Lemoine led the batting for the visitors.

Sixteen years ago few people in the world knew of such a preparation as a Powder for the Feet. To-day after the genuine merit of Allen's Foot-Ease has been told year after year by one grateful person to another, there are millions who would as soon go without a dentifice as without Allen's Foot-Ease. It is a cleanly, wholesome, healing, antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes, which has given rest and comfort to tired and aching feet in all parts of the world. It cures while you walk. Over 30,000 testimonials of cures of smarting, swollen, perspiring feet. It prevents friction and wear of the stockings and will save in your stocking bill ten times its cost each year. Imitations pay the dealer a larger profit, otherwise you would never be offered a substitute when you ask for Allen's Foot-Ease, the original powder for the feet. Imitations are not advertised because they are not permanent. For every genuine article there are many imitations. The imitator has no reputation to sustain—the advertiser has. It stands to reason that the advertised article is the best, otherwise the public would not buy it and the advertising would not be continued. When you ask for an article advertised in this paper, see that you get it. Refuse imitations.
